Dear Professor Marer:

I am looking forward to your participation in our evening discussion on Eastern Europe on Thursday, 8 November 1979. Our subject is one to which, as you know, we must return periodically: the extent to which the Soviet Union can rely upon its Warsaw Pact allies in various conceivable future situations, especially, of course, military crises. There are good reasons for a stock-taking at this time, not the least of which is the growing pattern of socio-economic difficulties facing the East European and Soviet leaderships.

Our plan for the evening is as follows: The company will assemble in my conference room in the CIA Headquarters Building in Langley between 5:30 and 6:00. Refreshments will be served. Our discussion will begin at 6:00 and continue until 8:30 or so. Dinner will be served at the conference table at 7:00. The company will be small, with four outside experts, several guests from elsewhere in the Government, and Agency analysts, for a total of about fifteen. May I ask you to prepare a five to ten minute statement of your views on the subject noted above. Following these opening statements from our visiting authorities, our format will be a free discussion.

I understand that you have agreed to remain over on Friday morning for a further discussion in which a larger number of our analysts will be able to participate. For this we shall be pleased to provide an honorarium in the amount of one day's consultant fee. In addition, the Agency will repay you for your travel and per diem expenses to the extent compatible with existing regulations.

I have asked [redacted] of my Academic Relations Staff to complete the arrangements for the evening. Please call them if you require further information or any assistance. Their telephone number is [redacted]
